CIRCUIT COURT TO BE A SHORT SESSION

Robert White, the 17 year old son of Charles White, was injured in a serious manner Monday afternoon, he having some of his teeth knocked out, his jaw broken, a shoulder dislocated and other bruises about the body.

Young White was leading a station belonging to Emmet McCarthy and while passing along Vine street and just in front of the Bogorger home, the horse wheeled about and kicked at the young man striking him in the face. Mrs. Bogorger saw the accident and hurrying out was assisted by other neighbors in getting the young fellow onto the porch. It was seen at once that he was seriously injured and a physician was at once telephoned for and in the meantime the boy was placed onto a delivery wagon belonging to Wm. Hess and taken to the office of Dr. Looze.

Those who saw the boy after the accident stated that it was one of the worst cases they had ever seen, and that he did not lose consciousness but was unable to help himself to any extent.

After being taken to the doctor's office the boy's injuries were fixed up in the best manner possible, and there is no doubt but what he will recover all right, altho he may show the effects of his experience the remainder of his life.

Armina Kempfert was given a divorce from August Kempfert on Monday.

Anderson was subsequently sentenced to one year for breaking jail, while Nic Young, on a habitual criminal charge, was sentenced to two years in State prison.

Court adjourned Monday evening for one week owing to the fact that none of the lawyers were ready to try their cases.

Death of an Aged Lady.

Mrs. Elsie Jewell, mother of Mrs. D. J. Gerow, died at the Witter house on Thursday of last week after a short illness, cause of death being principally to old age. Mrs. Jewell had reached the advanced age of 78 years and has made her home with her daughter in this city since last summer. She had enjoyed pretty good health up to a short time before her death, being able to be about and appearing like a much younger woman than one of her years.

A short service was held at the hotel on Thursday evening by Rev. J. J. Lock, and the remains were shipped that night to Vernon, Mich., the former home of the deceased, for burial.

Was Drunk and Disorderly.

Joseph Galanski was arrested on Sunday evening on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, and upon being brought up before Judge Calkins he pled guilty to the charge against him and was fined a dollar and costs. Not having the required capital with which to liquidate the judge made it lenient on him.

Galanski was at the rink at the time the trouble took place and after being ejected from there he got into a row and ended up in a fight, during the progress of which one of the local police happened along and made this plain preferable to running the car over.

The new car is a fine looking machine and seems to have the appearance of a much costlier car. It runs fine, and Fred has been demonstrating its good qualities to prospective customers since receiving it.

Bat Sharkey, who has been back from Canada during the past three months visiting with friends and relatives in this city and at Rudolph's, was among the pleasant callers at the Tribune office on Friday. Mr. Sharkey was making the rounds of his friends bidding them goodbye, it being his intention to leave for his Canadian home on Monday. Mr. Sharkey has done very nicely since moving to Canada, and has not a word to say against the country, but stated while here that if he could sell out his property up there it was his intention to move back to Wood county to live. Mr. Sharkey is so well known in this community that every man he meets is a friend and it goes without saying that the settlers are so far apart and he knows very few of those that do live there.

Robert L. Nash was taken sick from H. F. Lock on Friday and his case became so bad that same day that it was decided to perform an operation. Dr. Minahan of Green Bay was telephoned for and it was found that he could be here Friday evening on the Green Bay and Western, and everything was gotten ready for the operation performed that night after the train arrived. The operation was entirely successful and Mr. Nash has since been getting along as nicely as can be expected under the circumstances.

Bryant Outdone.

We have always believed that Secretary Bryan's oft-quoted: "What is so mysterious as an egg?" was the last word in appreciation of the Queen of Breakfast Foods. His tribute has been surpassed, however, by that of an old colored philosopher of our acquaintance.

"The Marked Woman"

With BARBARA TENNANT, in 5 Acts.

SYNOPSIS

The "MARKED WOMAN" is an intensely interesting story of the Boxer uprising in 1900. In a peaceful Russian hamlet the sister of Olga Petras is killed by Count Bobrikoff. Her hatred is aroused, and she joins the Nihilists. Her brother Ivan is sent by the "Brotherhood" to China with an important message and Olga accompanies him.

On the voyage she meets Lieutenant Dare of the U. S. Navy, who falls in love with her. On their arrival at Port Arthur they find the Nihilist headquarters raided. Olga is saved from Siberia by the Russian Ambassador, who sends her for safety to Kan-You-way, a Chinaman. On the way the junk is wrecked and Olga is washed ashore.

She is found by Dare and eventually comes to Kan-You-way. There she meets Prince Ching. To save the lives of Dare and the Russian minister she is forced to marry Ching.

Four years elapse. She has a son by Prince Ching. In the meantime Dare has been hunting for her. He finds out where she is and leads a rescue party. In the fight the Prince accidentally shoots his own son. Dare wishes to take Olga with him. She says it is impossible and the picture fades.

LOCALS LOSE TWO GAMES.

Friday Proved an Unlucky Day for us in Basket Ball.

If Grand Rapids ever had any aspirations for the championship, or thought the locals would be called on to take part in the spring meet at Appleton, their hopes were dashed last Friday evening when Weyauwega cleaned them up to the tune of 15 to 12.

Weyauwega has had a team to be reckoned with all the time and it was expected that the locals would have their hands full in downing them, but the locals had been putting up such a strong game that it was expected that they could trim the visitors when the time came. However, Captain Johnson, being out of the game put a handicap onto the locals that it was impossible to overcome, and they were compelled to take second place. Some people will claim that this is all right, and that is the goal toward which we should be drifting, while others will hold up their hands in holy horror and tell us that it means the ruination of the country.

Among the latter are the members of the Wisconsin Advancement Association. They are very strenuous in their assertions that it means ruination for the country and that it will enable men to dodge their taxes and that it would be accountable for many other evils that do not exist at the present time.

Enthusiasm on the single tax position claims that the plan of the single tax is to put all of the tax on the land, and none of it on personal property as is done today.

As a team on the outside it looks as if an attempt had been made to slip something over onto the people of Grand Rapids. It seems hardly possible, because the attempt was so Knights of Columbus to Entertain Their Friends March 18th.

The Knights of Columbus for some time have been figuring on a celebration on St. Patrick's day, but they have decided to hold their doings on the evening of March 18th instead of the 17th, as was the intention at first.

E. G. Dunn, of Mason City, Iowa, will deliver a lecture at Daly's Theater on March 18th, taking as his subject, "The Citizen of the Future."

Mr. Dunn is an orator of more than ordinary ability, as all will admit who have heard him, and there is no question but what his lecture will prove a treat to the people of Grand Rapids.

There will be no charge for admission, the lecturer being paid by the state council of the K. of C., so that the public is afforded a rare opportunity to hear a first class lecture at no cost whatever. It might be stated that Mr. Dunn has been spoken very highly of by the press wherever he has spoken.

Wreck at Nekoosa.

Traffic was held up at Nekoosa for a short time on Friday by an engine getting off the track at the switch. Snow had been falling all day and the tracks were in bad shape, and the evening passenger had two engines on it to get it back on track.

One of the engines took the loop and the other remained on the main line and the result was that the tender of one of the enginemen was tipped over and considerable damage done.

Traffic was delayed for several hours but things were straightened out about midnight so that business was resumed.

Never Too Old to Learn.

While Uncle Ike Stephenson has passed that stage of life when men are supposed to learn a great deal, it seems that his mind is still in a receptive mood. He recently stated that "he had cost him $100,000 to maintain his place in politics and $60,000 to keep his newspaper running, and that he was all thru with both propositions. Well, when a man passes the four score mark it is about time that he was acquiring some sense, even if it has been a long time coming.

All Ready for Business.

The local bowlers are all tuned up for the coming tournament which commences on the 20th instant and the present indications are that there will be a good sized attendance at the event. A number of entries have already come in, and the chances are that these will be increased very materially before the starting of the tournament.

The pins for the tournament arrived during the past week.

CIRCUIT COURT TO BE A SHORT SESSION

Circuit court convened in this city on Monday morning, Judge Park presiding, and Robert Morse as court stenographer. The morning was taken up in getting ready for business, after which some time was given over to granting papers to new citizens. There are a number in the county who are anxious to become citizens of the great United States, and since the various countries of Europe have been engaged in butchering the common people many of them have been stimulated in their desires, a condition for which they cannot be blamed.

The indications are that the present term of court will be rather a short one, as most of the cases have either been settled or continued over until the next term of court. There were a number of criminal cases on the calendar, but most of these have been thrown out or disposed of by the defendants signifying their intention of pleading guilty.

In the case of the state against Lester Anderson, the defendant will plead guilty, as will also Nic Young, and Frank Jackson. Anderson is up for embezzlement. Young on charge of being a habitual criminal and Jackson on a charge of bastardy.

Ardina Kempfert was given a divorce from August Kempfert on Monday.

Anderson was subsequently sentenced to one year for breaking jail, while Nic Young, on a habitual criminal charge, was sentenced to two years in State prison.

Court adjourned Monday evening for one week owing to the fact that none of the lawyers were ready to try their cases.

New Automobile Arrives.

Fred Ragan received his new Dodge car on Monday, the machine having been shipped here by rail from Stevens Point, the deep snowdrifts between here and our neighboring city making this plan preferable to running the car over.

The new car is a fine looking machine and seems to have the appearance of a much costlier car. It runs fine, and Fred has been demonstrating its good qualities to prospective customers since receiving it.

Another Forged Check.

A check that was cashed at the home of H. F. Looock on Friday subsequently turned out to be a forgery, and notwithstanding the fact that the local police were put on the job as soon as the deception was discovered, they have as yet been unable to discover the guilty party.

The check was for the sum of ten dollars and had the name of Rev. R. Pautz signed to the bottom of it, but it developed that Mr. Pautz had not drawn the check.

Robert L. Nash was taken sick with appendicitis on Friday, and his case became so bad that same day that it was decided to perform an operation. ### BOY IS BADLY INJURED.

Kicked in the Face by a Horse and Has Jaw Broken.

Robert White, the 17 year old son of Charles White, was injured in a serious manner Monday afternoon, he having some of his teeth knocked out, his jaw broken, a shoulder dislocated and other bruises about the body.

Young White was leading a stallion belonging to Emmet McCarthy and while passing along Vine street and just in front of the Bogeger home, the horse wheeled about and kicked at the young man striking him in the face. Mrs. Bogeger saw the accident and hurrying out was assisted by other neighbors in getting the young fellow onto the porch. It was seen at once that he was seriously injured and a physician was at once telephoned for and in the meantime the boy was placed onto a delivery wagon belonging to Wm. Those who saw the boy after the accident stated that it was one of the worst cases they had ever seen, and the boy did not lose consciousness, he was unable to help himself to any extent.

After being taken to the doctor's office the boy's injuries were fixed up in the best manner possible, and there is no doubt but what he will recover all right, altho he may show the effects of his experience the remainder of his life.

HAS A QUEER HABIT.

Man Who Amuses Himself by Looking Into Windows.

The local police report that they have received several complaints from people living in the suburbs concerning a man who has contracted the habit of peeping into windows of nights and thus scaring the women folks of the household into fits. As yet the man has never done anything more harmful than to peep into windows, but even this is somewhat disconcerting to a nervous person.

The police have made attempts to locate the man, but he has done most of his work in the outskirts of the city, so that he always had plenty of time to get away before there was any body on hand to take him in custody.

Just what satisfaction a man can secure from this sort of business is hard to conceive, but it may be that he is getting a whole lot of fun out of it.

Long Walk For Revenue Stamp.

Joe Link, who was employed in the sawmill at Kellner, met with a serious and painful accident last week. He was struck on the calf of the leg by a stick that was thrown from the sawmill, the flesh being torn in a most terrible manner. The wound was dressed by a physician, it requiring eleven stitches to close the wound, and the injured man has since been getting along as well as can be expected under the circumstances.

The Split Log Drag.

Some of the country sections of Wood county who are not on the county highway system should have constructed this spring a split log drag. That is, if they live in a clay section. The split log drag properly applied, will do more to put into shape and keep up a clay road than anything else costs so little money. The average man can use it intelligently as soon as he understands the principles of the implement, and the cost of application is very light.

London, March 2.—Premier Asquith announced in the house of commons on Monday that the government had decided to prevent committees of any kind from reaching Germany or leaving that country.

This means that no foodstuffs of any kind will be allowed to reach Germany. The embargo will also be extended to raw materials.

This action was taken by the British government in retaliation for Germany's submarine warfare against English merchant ships.

England will now try to starve Germany into submission. It is believed that the embargo of the British government upon foodstuffs and raw materials will increase the activities of the German submarine in the "broad war" against England. In making the momentous announcement, Premier Asquith said:

"There is no form of economic pressure which we do not consider ourselves entitled to assert under existing conditions."

Premier Asquith, in speaking of Germany's submarine war, declared:

"Germany has taken a step without precedence in organizing a campaign of piracy and pillage."

COMB BARES PLOT TAKE STEAMER DACIA

ANARCHISTS INTENDED TO KILL CARNEGIE, ROCKEFELLER AND VANDERBILT.

DYNAMITER TRAPPED IN ACT

Informal Machine in Church—New York Police Declare Friend Said "Reds" Expected to Slay Millions and Spread Terror.

New York, March 4.—An attempt to blow up St. Patrick's cathedral with a bomb and the arrest of two men by detectives on Tuesday who had been informed for months of the their activities was followed by an announcement made at police headquarters that the arrests had thwarted an anarchist plot to kill with bombs Andrew Carnegie, John D. Rockefeller, John D. Rockefeler, Jr., and other wealthy men. Thereafter the anarchists, according to the police, were to start in New York city a reign of terror comparable only to the days of the French revolution.

It was part of the plot, the police assert, for gangs of men armed with rifles and revolvers to appear simultaneously in various parts of the city to shoot and to pillage; the biggest banks of New York city were to be blown up and many wealthy men were to be slain.

The wrecking of the cathedral was to be the signal for the opening of the elaborate campaign of murder and looting.

With the capitalists disposed of, the anarchists planned, according to the police statements to invade the financial district and lay their bombs in the city's biggest banks. General looting was to follow.

For months a central office detective had worked in the inner circle of the anarchists, according to the police story, and had kept the detective bureau informed of all their plans. This detective, Frank Thiel, assisted in the manufacture of the bombs with which the attempt was made to blow up the cathedral. The detective accompanied the bomb thrower to the cathedral and saw with him when he lit the bomb and hurled it at the altar.

Immediately the cathedral, to which six persons sat at worship, became alive with smoke. The bomb dashed forward and stamped out the sputtering fuse. There was no noise.

The alleged bomb thrower said he was Frank Abano, a lithographer, twenty-four years old. Charles Garbo, an eighteen-year-old boy, was arrested and charged with complicity in the plot.

GERMANY MAY SEARCH SHIPS

Kaiser's Submarines to Destroy Only Vessels Carrying Contraband Owned by Enemy.

Berlin (via Sayville), March 4.—That Germany will agree, to a certain extent, to the demands of the United States concerning the German naval war zone was indicated on Tuesday when the government announced that, under certain conditions, its submarines will halt and investigate merchantmen on the high seas. It also was announced that they will proceed only against such vessels as are found to be carrying contraband or are owned in nations hostile to Germany.

The majority of the men entombed, about 170 in number, are Americans and have long been residents of Layland. The explosion was caused by gas. One man named Almy Cooper was blown against a pole and killed.

AMERICAN SHIP CAPTURED BY FRENCH CRUISER.

Shifting of Responsibility by Britain Adds to Complications—New Issues Are Involved.

Paris, March 2.—A French cruiser has arrested the American steamer Dacia in the channel and taken her to Brest. This announcement is official.

Washington, March 2.—Officials here were tremendously interested to learn that the American cotton steamer Dacia, formerly of the Hamburg-American line, flying the German flag, had been seized by a French cruiser and taken to Brest. The capture of Washington, and even the fact that a French instead of an English warship would bring her into custody had been foreseen. But this transfer of the question of the ship's status combined with the already intricate points in the Dacia transfer from German to American, made the situation even more complicated.

The action was taken by the British government in retaliation for Germany's submarine warfare against English merchant ships.

England will now try to starve Germany into submission. It is believed that the embargo of the British government upon foodstuffs and raw materials will increase the activities of the German submarine in the "bread war" against England. In making the momentous announcement, Premier Asquith said:

"There is no form of economic pressure which we do not consider ourselves entitled to assert under existing conditions."

Premier Asquith, in speaking of Germany's submarine war, declared:

"Germany has taken a step without procedure in organizing a campaign of piracy and pillage."

Washington, March 3.—The substance of the British and French notes is contained in the following statement given out by the state department on Monday:

"In the western theater the enemy's attacks in Champagne continued, but all were repulsed. To the south of Maucourt and north of Verdun the Germans stormed several of the enemy's positions, driving him out. The Germans made six others and 250 men prisoners.

"On the northern slopes of the Vosges the Germans, after considerable violent fighting, succeeded in dislodging the French from their positions.

The Million Dollar Mystery

By HAROLD MAC GRATH

Illustrated from Scenes in the Photo Drama of the Same Name by the Thanhouser Film Company

(Copyright, 1914, by Harold Mac Grath)

SYNOPSIS.

Stanley Hargrave, millionaire, after a miraculous escape from the Black Hundred, lives the life of a recluse for eighteen years. Hargrave one night enters a Bronx restaurant and is forced to face with the gang's leader, Braline.

After the meeting, during which natural enemies they become the other, Hargrave hurries to his magnificent Riverdale home and lays plans for many a secret and secret plan to try. He writes a letter to the girl's school in New Jersey where eighteen years ago he had been a student, and sets on the operation his baby daughter, Florence Gray.

He also pays a visit to Braline and members of his band around Hargrave's home at night, but when they enter the house, they find out that a balloon leaves the roof.

The safe is found empty—the million which Hargrave was to have was gone. Then some one announced the balloon had been punctured and dropped him and his daughter.

Princess Olga, a girl who arrives from the girl's school, Princess Olga, Braline's companion, is the first to be told of the secret. Two bungo detectives call, but their plot is foiled by Norton, a newspaper man.

Norton lays a trap for Braline and his gang. Princess Olga also visits Norton, and he easily falls into the reporter's snare. The plan proves abortive through Braline's good luck, and the police fall into the trap.

After falling in their first attempt, the Black Hundred trap, Norton, they make a money, but she escapes, again foiling them.

CHAPTER V.—Continued.

It was midnight when he made his departure. As he stepped into the street, he glanced about cautiously. On the corner he saw a policeman swinging his night stick. Otherwise the street was deserted. Braline proceeded jauntily down the street.

And yet, from the darkened doors of the house across the way, the figure of a man emerged and stood contemplating the windows of the Perigore apartment. Suddenly the lights went out. The watcher made no effort to follow Braline. The knowledge he was after did not necessitate any such procedure.

Of course, Florence read the "personal." She took the newspaper at once to Jones, who smiled grimly.

"You see, I trust you."

"And so long as you continue to trust me no harm will befall you. You were left in my care by your father. I am to guard you at the expense of my life. Last night's affair was a miracle. The next time you will not find it so easy to escape."

Nor did she.

"There will be no next time," gravely. "But I am going to ask you a direct question. Is my father alive?"

The butler's brow puckered. "I have promised to say nothing, one way or the other."

She laughed.

"Why do you laugh?" "I laugh because if he were dead there would be no earthly reason for your not saying so at once. But I hate money, the name of it, the sound of it, the sight of it. It is at the bottom of all wars and crimes. I despise it!"

"The root of all evil. Yet it performs many noble deeds. But never mind the money. Let us give our attention to this personal. Doubtless it originated in the same mind which conceived the letter. Your father would never have inscribed such a personal. What! Give his enemies a chance to learn his secret? No. On the other hand I want you to show this personal to all you meet today, Susan, the reporter, to everybody. Talk about it. Say that you wonder what you shall do. Trust no one with your real thoughts."

"Not even you, Mr. Jones," thought the girl as she nodded.

"And tell them that you showed it to me and that I appeared worried."

That night there was a meeting of the organization called the Black Hundred. Braline asked if anyone knew what the Hargrave butler looked like.

"I had a glimpse of him the other night; but being unprepared, I might not recognize him again."

Vronon described Jones minutely.

"Vronon that memory of yours is worth a lot of money," was his only comment.

"Hope it will be worth more soon."

"I believe I'll be able to recognize Mr. Jones if I see him. Who is he and what is he?"

"He has been with Hargrave for 14 years. There was a homicidal case in which Jones was active. Hargrave saved him. He is faithful and uncommunicative. Money will not touch him. If he does know where that million is, hot iron could not make him own up to it. The only way is to watch him, follow him, wait for the moment when he'll grow careless. No man is always on his mettle; he lets up sooner or later."

"He is being watched, as you know."

Vronon nodded approvingly. "The captain of the trap steamer Orient, by the way, was seen with a roll of money. He was in one of the water front saloons, bragging boy he had hoodwinked someone."

"Did he say where he'd got the cash?" asked Braline.

"They tried to jump him on that, but he shut up. Well, we have agreed that Felton shall watch from the street bracelet, and my father's lawyers say that that would not hold in any court."

"You were born in St. Petersburg, my dear. Have the embassy there look up the birth registers."

"That would not put me into possession. Nothing but the return of my father will avail me. And there's a horrible thought always of my not being his real daughter."

"There's no doubt in my mind. I have only to recall Katrina's face to know whose child you are. But what will you live on?"

"Here was a far greater mixup than she had calculated upon. Supposing after all it was only a resemblance, that the child was not Hargrave's a substitute just to blud the Black Hundred? To keep them away from the true daughter? Her son, Felton, my friend," said Braline softly, "he always spoke softly when he was in a deadly humor—Felton, you slept on duty the other night. Hargrave strolled up, consulted Jones, and got away after knocking me down. The next fall will mean short shift. Be warned!"

"I saw you only, sir. So help me. I was not asleep. I saw you run down the street after the taxicab. I did not see anyone else."

Braline shrugged. "Remember what I said?"

Felton bowed respectfully and made his exit. He wished in his soul that he might some day catch the master mind free of his eternal mask. It was an iron hand which ruled them and there were friends of his (Felton's) who had mysteriously vanished after a brief period of rebellion. The boss was a swell; probably belonged to clubs and society which he adroitly plifed. The organization always had money. Whenever there was a desperate job to be undertaken, Vronon simply poured out the money necessary to promote it. Whenever Braline and Vronon became engaged in earnest conversation he talked Slav. Braline was never called by name here; the boss, simply that."

Well, ten per cent of a million was a hundred thousand. This would be equally divided between the second ten of the Black Hundred. Another ten per cent would go to 80 members; the balance would be divided between Vronon and the boss. But his soul rebelled at being ordered about like so much dirt under another man's feet. He would take his ten thousand and make the grand getaway.

The next afternoon the princess called upon Florence. Nothing was said about the adventure, and this fact created a vague unrest in the scheming woman's mind. She realized that she must play her cards more carefully than ever. Not the least distrust must be permitted to enter the child's head. Once that happened good-bye to the wonderful emeralds. Was it that she really craved the stones? Was it not rather a venom acquired from the knowledge that this child's mother had cleverness and was not sure of—Braline's love? Did he really care for her or was she only the cat's-paw to pluck his hot chestnuts from the fire?

When Florence showed her the "personal," her vague doubts became instantly dissipated. The child would not have shown her the newspaper had there been any distrust on her part.

"My child, your father is alive, then?"

"We don't know," sadly.

"Why, I should say that proves it."

"On the contrary, it proves nothing of the sort, since I have yet to discover a treasure in this house. I have hunted in every nook, drawer; I've searched for panels, looked in trunks for false bottoms. Nothing, nothing!"

"Ah, if I could only find it!"

"And what would you do with it?"

"Take it at once to some bank and offer the whole of it for the safe return of my father, every penny of it. I don't know what to do, which way to turn," tears gathering in her eyes and they were genuine tears, too.

"There are millions in stocks and bonds and I cannot touch a penny of it because the legal documents have not been found. I can't even prove that I am his daughter, except for half an old bracelet, and my father's lawyers say that that would not hold in any court."

Charles Appleton of New Orleans was the subject of illustration at a lecture given by a physician in that city not long ago. He had contracted the habit of closing his left eye. He said it rested his sight, he fancied, the left eye being the weaker of the two. The habit grew until he was started out of his habit and opened his eyes. The woman looked, startled, denounced him as a flirt, complained to the conductor, waxed angrier the more she thought of the affair and finally had Appleton arrested. He had to prove his peculiar habit in order to escape a fine.

Perry Lutkins, a well-known New York advertising man, has discovered that he is a philosopher. He mounted a weighing machine the other day and, dropping a cent in the slot, waited for the dial to indicate the exact number of pounds of avordupois tissue he was till he met with an adventure on a street car that ruffled him considerably.

He was a passenger. He had his left eye closed as usual. She carefully glanced at Appleton and remarked the closed eye without there seeming to be any cause for an apparent affliction. She looked once or twice again and made such an impression on Appleton that he was startled out of his habit and opened his eyes. ## MERCHANTS HOLD A MEETING

About Fifty Attend Banquet at the Witter Hotel.

The meeting of the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association held at the Witter Hotel on Monday evening was attended by about fifty members of the association. The first order of business was a banquet served by the management of the hotel at 7:30 o'clock. This banquet to say the least, was appreciated by all, it being served in a manner that left nothing to be desired.

After the banquet there were addresses by State Engineer Gillespie and County Highway Commissioner Louis Amundson. These gentlemen both gave very interesting talks. Mr. Amundson's remarks being about the roads of Wood county in particular, while Mr. Gillespie talked more on roads in general. There were also short talks by some of our local orators, among whom were Mayor Oren, Otto R. Ragan, W. F. Kellogg, Earl M. Pease, all of which was listened to with the closest attention by those assembled.

Altogether it was a most pleasant and profitable meeting and everybody was well pleased with the banquet and the talks that followed.

"SAFETY Capital and Surplus $100,000.00 FIRST"

WHEN men tell their friends about "Right-Cut" they call it the Real Tobacco Chew. Right there you have the secret of "Right-Cut" success—the fact that it has so many advantages causes men to tell the good news to their friends.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—cut fine, short shred—seasoned and sweetened just enough, cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it, you can find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It's a ready chew, cut fine and short shred so that you won't have to grind it with your teeth.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco doesn't need to be covered up with nutmeg and licorice. It adds to the taste but brings out the rich tobacco taste in "Right-Cut".

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

What the most of us, down at the bottom, like best about that speech of Mr. Wilson's at Indianapolis is the human touch of it. As a review of the acts of his administration, as a summing up of the present situation in so far as it affects business conditions, as a presentation of the Democratic side of the argument, as a definition of the United States' attitude toward Mexico and the weaker nations with which we touch elbows, as an earnest of our purpose to serve the now warring people of Europe, when the time for service is come, what Mr. Wilson had to say could not have been better said, and no president in recent times has had anything to say that was better worth the saying. The record of his administration in its first two years is the record of the furthest advance yet made in the science of government, the intelligently planned and successfully executed use of party machinery with an eye single to the public good.

To great problems Mr. Wilson has already written the titles of great achievement, and the end is not yet. But what comes home to us common folk is his revelation of himself, not as a triumph of mind over matter, but as a "really, truly" human being, who confesses to being lonesome at times and gives concrete evidence that he rather welcomes a fight for the right's sake.—Louisville Times.

Mr. Wilson

A canvas made among the republican legislators at Madison by a Milwaukee newspaper clearly indicates that the great majority of Wisconsin voters, regardless of party affiliation, are for President Wilson or in other words believe that he will be re-elected in 1916 and will give them their support at that time. The canvas made by the Milwaukee paper revealed only one republican assemblyman, who was doubtful as to Wilson's chances in Wisconsin and even he admitted that he was probably not voicing the opinion of the greater number of voters in his district. Similar canvasses made among republicans in other states throughout the country have shown an overwhelming Wilson sentiment. With that fact in mind it is evident that President Wilson, if he becomes a candidate in 1916 and there is every reason to believe that he intends to, will be returned to the white house by one of the greatest votes ever received by a chief executive of the nation in its history. The democrats are all for Wilson and with the republicans voicing his praises, it will be a Wilson landslide. President Wilson has demonstrated to the country what efficiency can accomplish in the white house. He has handled the affairs of this nation, when all other principal world powers are at war, in a way that calls for universal approbation. He is without a doubt as great a president as America has ever had.—Fond du Lac Reporter.

DROVE AWAY THE TOOTHACHE

In His Thirst for Revenge the Colonel Had No Time to Think of Physical Ailments.

One morning the colonel rolled out of his blankets with the jumping toothache, and, though he exhausted all the remedies in camp, nothing had any effect. It was 40 miles to the nearest town, with the chances against finding a dentist there, and it was finally decided to appeal to one of the cowboys in his station, five miles away. He came over in response to a message, and, after taking a look at the tooth, which was a double one on the upper jaw, the cowboy said:

"Kernel, I kin shoot that tooth out as slick as grease if you don't mind the scar it will leave on your cheeks."

"Shoot it out!" shouted the colonel.

"Why, man, you must be crazy."

"Well, maybe I kin pick in enough powder to blow it out."

"Never!"

"Right chuck it out with a piece of iron and a stout stick!" continued the cowboy.

"And you might go to Texas and beyond!" engaged the suffering and indignant man.

"I'm only telling you how we do it out here, and if you don't want that tooth out you'll have to stand the pain."

The cowboy started for his station, but after a gallop of a mile he returned to beckon the rest of us aside and said:

"He seems to be a purty squar' sort of a man though a feetic' teed and I'm sorry for him, he is a good rider!"

"Only fair."

"Kin he shoot?"

"Not very straight."

"Then I think I can cure that tooth-ache."

He spent two minutes unfolding the plot and then went over to the sufferer and said:

"Kernel, I've come back to say you ar' a booby."

"What?" yelled the colonel, as he sprang up from his seat before the campfire.

"A booby and a squaw, kernel, and likewise a durned old liar."

The colonel jumped for him, but the cowboy dodged and ran for his horse. We had another ready saddled with two loaded revolvers in the holsters, and the "booby" sprang into the saddle and gave chase. After getting out on the prairie half a mile the cowboy began to circle and shoot and yell, and the colonel followed him and shot away the whole 12 bullets without sending one within five feet of him. When the twelfth one had been fired the kind-hearted cowboy rode off at the top of his speed and the colonel came into camp to dismount and say:

"Get me a hundred cartridges and my own horse and I'll follow that man to the end of the earth."

"How's the toothache, colonel?" was asked.

"Toothache? Why, it's all gone, and I'll have that fellow's scalp if I have to stay out here all summer!"—Washington Herald.

The civilians who volunteered the services of themselves and their motor cars to convey the Fatherland's holiday gifts to the German troops in the trenches at the front were summoned before a gray old Bavarian general to receive instructions as to their behavior in the enemy's country.

The general explained to them that they might expect in passing through a village to be fired on by franc-tireurs, and added that the persons who fired the shots might not always be men entitled to bear arms.

"Take an example," said he, fixing his eagle eye upon one of the volunteers: "suppose you have entered a Belgian village, and while you are spinning along through the market square there is a lively fusillade directed at you from the surrounding houses. You turn toward your assailants and see nothing but empty windows. Only in the second story of one house an old woman is peering out. What would you do in that case, Mr. Meier?"

"I'd not look back," was the reply.

Jam and "Bully Beef" for British.

The amount of jam that the British soldier is eating on this campaign has attracted the notice of all the foreign newspaper correspondents, American, Belgian and French, who have seen for the first time the British soldier in war.

The general explained to them that they might expect in passing through a village to be fired on by franc-tireurs, and added that the persons who fired the shots might not always be men entitled to bear arms.

"One morning the physician fell overboard, which caused quite a consternation among the passengers. The captain came to the scene and inquired the cause.

"Oh, it's nothing, sir," answered one of the sailors, "only the doctor has fallen into his own medicine chest."

What Interested Him.

Sir Arthur Pinero, the dramatist, tells an interesting story of a conversation he once heard while watching one of his own plays in the stalls of a West End theater.

A lady and her little boy were sitting near him, and as the curtain went down on the second act the fond mother turned to her son and said: "Well, dear, are you enjoying it?"

"Oh, yes, mamma," replied the youngster gleefully; "do you know, there are sixty-nine men in this theater who have bald spots on the tops of their heads! I counted them five times!"

After that the lady enjoyed the rest of the play without asking her young boy any more questions.—Pearson's Weekly.

MAY BE COFFEE That Causes all the Trouble

When the house is afire, it's about the same as when disease begins to show, it's no time to talk but time to act—delay is dangerous—remove the cause of the trouble at once.

"For a number of years," wrote a Kansas lady, "I felt sure that coffee was hurting me, and yet I used it. At last I got so bad that I made up my mind I must either quit the use of coffee or die."

"Everything I ate distressed me, and I suffered severely most of the time with palpitation of the heart. I frequently woke up in the night with the feeling that I was almost gone—my heart seemed so smothered and weak in its action. My breath grew short, and the least exertion set me panting. I slept but little and suffered from rheumatism."

"Two years ago I stopped using the coffee and began to use Postum and from the very first I began to improve. It worked a miracle! Now I can eat anything and digest it without trouble. I sleep like a baby, and my heart beats strong and regularly. My breathing has become steady and normal, and my rheumatism has left me."

"I feel like another person, and it is all due to quitting coffee and using Postum, for I haven't used any medicine and none would have done any good as long as I kept drinking with coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellness," in pgs.

Postum comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled, 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolved quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious, and cost per cup about the same.

The Boy From Zeeny

By James Whitcomb Riley

Copyright by James Whitcomb Riley

His advent in our little country town was at once abrupt and novel. Why he came, when he came, or how he came, we boys never knew. My first remembrance of him is of his sudden appearance in the midst of a game of "Am-ay-oye," in which a dozen boys besides myself were most enthusiastically engaged. The scene of the exciting contest was the center of the main street of the town, the elevation over which we tossed the ball carrying the stick remains of a grand triumphal arch left as a sort of cadaverous remnant of some recent political demonstration. Although I recall the boy's external appearance upon that occasion with some vagueness, I vividly remember that his trousers were much too large and long, and that his heavy, flapping coat was buttonless, and very badly worn and damaged at the sleeves and elbows. I remember, too, with even more distinctness, the hat he wore; it was a high, silken bell-crowned hat—a man's hat and a veritable "ping," not a new and shiny "ping" by any means, but still of dignity and gloss enough to furnish a noticeable contrast to the other appearances of his wearer's wardrobe. In fact, it was through this latter article of dress that the general attention of the crowd came at last to be drawn particularly to his unfortunate possessor, who evidently directed by an old-time instinct, had mechanically thrust the inverted "easator" under a falling ball, and the ball, being made of yarn, wrapped tightly over a green walnut, and dropping from an uncommon height, had gone through the hat like a round shot.

Naturally enough much merriment was occasioned by the singular manner, and the victim of the odd occurrence seemed himself inclined to join the boisterous laughter and make the most of his ridiculous misfortune. He pulled the hat back over his tousled head, and with the flapping crown it still clinging by one frayed hinge, he capered through a grotesquely executed jig that made the clamorous crowd about him howl again.

"Whoo-hoo! a booby, a booby, and likewise a durned old liar."

The colonel jumped for him, but the cowboy dodged and ran for his horse. We had another ready saddled with two loaded revolvers in the holsters, and the "booby" sprang into the saddle and gave chase. After getting out on the prairie half a mile the cowboy began to circle and shoot and yell, and the colonel followed him and shot away the whole 12 bullets without sending one within five feet of him. ## COAL WILL BE SUPERSEDED

Little Doubt That OH is to Be the Future Naval Fuel—Has Many Advantages.

The introduction of the use of oil as fuel upon our battleships is really the most important development in naval engineering since the advent of steam.

The naval authorities have been experimenting with oil as fuel for the last fifteen years, and its advantages have long been recognized, but its use has been restricted because of doubts as to the existence of a sufficient supply. It is now known, however, that enough oil exists in the public lands of California alone to supply the needs of the United States navy for a century at least.

"Yes, and I bet," said the boy, "that oil will be a safe and sure remedy for all the ills of the world."

"What's the use of oil?" asked the boy.

Mr. James McDaniel, Oakley, Ky., writes: "I overworked and strained myself, which brought on Kidney and Bladder Disease. My symptoms were backache and burning in the stool, which was sore and had a constant hurting all the time—broken sleep, tired feeling, nervousness, putrid and swollen eyes, shortness of breath and rheumatism. I suffered ten months. I was treated by a physician, but found no relief until I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. I now feel that I am permanently cured by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills."

"Do you subscribe to the old story that the criminal always returns to the scene of the crime?"

"Not always," replied the sure-enough detective. "Sometimes the extradition papers won't hold."

His Own Medicine.

A medical practitioner on board an ocean liner administered, rather freely, sea-water among the patients who were ill. No matter what their ailments were, a dose of the briny fluid was quickly handed to them, and they were told to drink it up.

"Two years ago I stopped using the coffee and began to use Postum, and from the very first I began to improve. It worked a miracle! Now I can eat anything and digest it without trouble. I sleep like a baby, and my heart beats strong and regularly. My breathing has become steady and normal, and my rheumatism has left me."

"I feel like another person, and it is all due to quitting coffee and using Postum, for I haven't used any medicine and none would have done any good as long as I kept drugging with coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in plugs.

Postum comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled, 15¢ and 25¢ packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30¢ and 50¢ tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious, and cost per cup about the same.

The Boy From Zeeny

By James Whitcomb Riley

Copyright by James Whitcomb Riley

His advent in our little country town was at once abrupt and novel. Why he came, when he came, or how he came, we boys never knew. My first remembrance of him is of his sudden appearance in the midst of a game of "Ants-over." In which a dozen boys besides myself were most enthusiastically engaged. The scene of the exciting contest was the center of the main street of the town, the elevation over which we tossed the ball being the skeleton remains of a grand triumphal arch, left as a sort of cadaverous remnant of some recent political demonstration. Although I recall the boy's external appearance upon that occasion with some vagueness, I vividly remember that his trousers were much too large and long, and that his heavy, flapping coat was buttoned at the sleeves and elbow. I remember, too, with even more distinctness, the hat he wore; it was a high silk, bell-crowned hat—a man's hat, and a veritable "plug"—not a new and shiny "plug," but still of dignity and gloss enough to furnish a noticeable contrast to the other appurtenances of its wearer's wardrobe. In fact, it was through this latter article of dress that the general attention of the crowd came at last to his unfortunate possessor, who evidently directed by an old-time instinct, had mechanically thrust the (inverted) "custer" under a falling ball, and the ball, being made of yarn wrapped tightly over a green walnut, and dropping from an uncommon height, had gone through the hat like a round shot.

"Get me a hundred cartridges and my own horse and I'll follow that man to the end of the earth."

"How's the toothache, colonel?" was asked.

"Toothache! Why, it's all gone, and I'll have that fellow's scalp if I have to stay out here all summer!"—Washington Herald.

No Use.

The civilians who volunteered the services of themselves and their motor cars to convey the Patriarch's holiday gifts to the German troops in the trenches at the front were summoned before a gray old Bavarian general to receive instructions as to their behavior in the enemy's country. The general explained to them that they might expect in passing through a village to be fired on by franc-tireurs, and added that the persons who fired the shots might not always be men entitled to bear arms.

"Take an example," said he, fixing his eagle eye upon one of the volunteers, "suppose you have entered a Belgian village, and while you are spinning along through the market square there is a lively fusillade directed at you from the surrounding houses. You turn toward your assailants and see nothing but empty windows. Only in the second story of one house an old woman is peering out. What would you do in that case, Mr. Moler?"

"I'd not look back," was the reply.

Jam and "Bulky Bae" for British.

The amount of jam that the British soldier is eating on this campaign has attracted the notice of all the foreign newspaper correspondents, American, Belgian and French, who have seen for the first time the British soldier in war.

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

Kills Pain

In the world, I have just my ticket back to Boston—that's near Massachusetts, you know. It is a third-class ticket. I shall arrive in Boston seven days from tomorrow morning, without a penny to my name, and with the knowledge that I have the secret of revolutionizing artillery, which nobody will look at."

"But how did you come here?" inquired the girl.

"I was coming to that," said John. "This evening being my last in London, I thought I would take a stroll through the fashionable quarters and imagine that I had sold the gun and had a check for a hundred thousand pounds in my pocket. I had on my evening clothes to heighten the illusion. Passing a house with an awning over the steps, I asked a friendly policeman what was happening. He told me that Mr. Langford was giving a ball."

"Is that the Mr. Langford of the war office?" I inquired.

"He told me that it was. And then a humorous idea came to me. I had tried to see Mr. Langford for a number of weeks and had spent a good deal of board money in the process.

Why shouldn't I go into Mr. Lang-ford's house?"

"This is most interesting!" exclaimed the girl. "I know what you are going to say. Why shouldn't you hear this lion in his lair and demand that he see your gun?"

John stuck his head. "No, I don't take advantage of men in that way," he answered. "I thought that I would let Mr. Langford a good dinner on me and an evening's gayety. So I entered. The butler announced my name to Mr. Langford. She did not know me, but she thought she had invited me, for she gave me the most charming smile. And—I have had supper."

"What a shame!" murmured the girl.

"Why?" inquired John.

"Because I haven't," she said frankly.

"But I am quite capable of eating other," admitted John. "You see, during the past week my fare has been somewhat—well, depicted."

The girl promptly rose. John offered her his arm. At that moment she seemed to him the sweetest and most winsome, charming girl in the world.

"Do you mind my saying something?" he inquired, as they sat to gether at a little table in the supper-room.

"Is this another confession?" inquired the girl, looking at him archly.

"In a measure—yes," he answered.

"Since I have been here tonight I have discovered an additional reason for regretting that Mr. Langford so obstinately refused to give me an opportunity of showing him the model of my gun."

"Measuring?" the girl inquired; but the look in the young man's eyes answered her. She laughed and blushed, and then, to cover her confusion, raised her glass of champagne to her lips and sipped at it.

"Suppose he sees your gun?" she inquired.

"Then I don't see how he can help buying it, if he has brains in his bend instead of wheels," John an-stered. "But he won't—unless he sends me a letter by special messenger before ten o'clock tomorrow morning, or recalls me by wireless from mid-ocean by flying machine."

"But if either of these events could happen?" the girl persisted.

"Then," answered John, gravely, "I should ask permission to call on you.

What would you do?"

"I?" answered the girl. "Why, I should say that I should be delighted to have you meet mother."

"Only your mother?"

"Well, perhaps myself," she admitted.

"Where would this be?"

"At number 15 Edgemere gardens," said Miss Derry to John Trumble, as they sat side by side in the conservatory of Mrs. Langford's London house.

They had danced three times together—three times in succession, and

ON MURDER CHARGE

Winnebago Indian Held at Wausau For Wife's Death.

Doug's Grizzly Bear, a Winnebago Indian who came from Nebraska last fall and has been living in the town of Elderon, Marathon county, is being held at Wausau on a charge of having murdered his wife.

The woman was killed Wednesday morning, while she was returning home with her husband from Hatley, where they had gone seeking employment. They were afoot and on reaching Beavent Tuesday afternoon, they went to two saloons, where they drank beer and secured a bottle of whiskey. They resumed their walk at about six o'clock in the evening, but as to what followed, Bear claims to have no recollection. The next he remembers was waking up at about 4 o'clock next morning and finding his wife lying near him in the snow beside the road. He thought she was sleeping, but when he attempted to arouse her found she was dead.

Bear picked up his wife's body and carried it a quarter of a mile to the home of another Indian. There were several wounds on the head, evidently inflicted by some blunt instrument, the most severe being on the left temple. Her skull was probably fractured.

Bear is about thirty-five years of age and has had a good reputation since coming to Elderon. He is being held without bail.

Bear Enters Bear's Den.

The Grandon Republican publishes the following in its last week's issue:

"Harlan Chaney, of the township of Grandon, has put it all over the hunters of northern Wisconsin by crawling into a bear's den and killing the bear.

"Last week Thursday, Chaney, who is only sixteen years of age, went rabbit hunting with his two dogs. The dogs finally found the den of a bear, and their furious barking attracted the attention of the young hunter. Chaney hurried to the dogs and soon discovered the cause of their excitement. Not being able to get a shot at the bear from the outside, the boy cocked his 30-30 carbine and crawled into Mr. Bear's bedroom, the little dogs bravely attacking by their young master, crawled in also. Chaney felt around in the darkness and unwillingly grasped the bear by a paw. Mr. Bear then showed himself and instead of shaking hands with his master, took a vicious snap at the boy. Chaney then discharged his rifle in the bear's face, hitting it near the eye, and blowing its brains out.

"The animal was a male, one year of age and weighed 150 lbs. It had a beautiful coat of fur."

The Right Spirit.

Efforts are being made to have a closed season for deer in Wisconsin and during the coming week hearings will be held at Madison. There is no need for a closed season in Wisconsin, but what is needed most is a law which will keep hunters of other states out of this state. Much of the agitation for a closed season now comes from hunters from Ohio and other states, who realize that the game is not as plentiful as a few years back and who want to replenish it by a law providing a closed season. They have nothing to lose, being able to pick out some other state in the meantime. But how about the residents of Wisconsin, who live here, and especially those of the north who have been able to hunt each year, and provide venison for the home?

It is fair to them to have a closed season, in face of the fact that deer is plentiful or will be if out-of-state hunters are barred? In the past the desire for the $25.00 license fee has appealed stronger to the game department at Madison than real protection of game. It is admitted, by the game warden, but not for publication, that foreign hunters have killed off the deer, and that a few years more will see serious inroads unless something is done to stop it. The hunters from other states have fallen in with the plan and are willing to have a closed season for a few years and in the meantime hunt in Minnesota or some other state. But what about the home-steaders of the north? Are we going to deny them the right to hunt for deer, or are we going to be true Badgers and stand by the people of Wisconsin as against any other state?

The game of Wisconsin belongs to the people of this state, and if there is going to be scarcity now or in the future, it is unfair to open our doors to outsiders. What we need is more consideration for people at home, and none for the hunter who comes here from another state. The people who have gone into the northland and endured the hardships and built up a home, deserve to have an annual recreation in deer hunting—Shaybogen Press.

The meanest man on record is a certain farmer who lives in Kansas. He sold his son-in-law one-half a cow and then refused to divide the milk, maintaining that he sold only the front half. The buyer was also required to buy the feed the cow consumed and compelled to carry water to her three times a day. Recently the cow hooked the old man and now he is suing his son-in-law for damages.

In Memoriam.

(In loving remembrance of Maggie Newber.)

Our darling Maggie is gone, nor soon our tears will dry.

Full heavy is our sorrow our hearts are sad and sore.

There's mourning in our home their is grief from morn till night.

For our bravest our dearest is no more.

The many care in home affairs she served us, served us well;

Putting all thoughts of self aside for us she used her heart and brain.

All's he did and suffered, for us only one above can tell.

Steadfast, one course she followed where the path of duty led, in all our conflicts in our struggles she did a giant's share.

Bitter words were never on her lips, nor our home is happier, brighter, 'tis to her the praise is due.

For each morn's he led us forth from darkness to the light of day.

May she rest in peace. Amen.

CHILD BIRTH.

It must have been intended by the Creator that child birth would be a reasonably natural and a comparatively safe ordeal in the life of the human species. If so, civilization has mixed things up pretty badly, for according to the last biennial report of the state board of health, in the year 1917 two hundred and ninety-four women died during, or shortly following the period of child birth.

Of these 294 deaths, 158 were due to septicemia or blood poisoning, due to the introduction of the germs of blood poisoning through the dirty handling of the patient during the period. This is an almost absolutely preventable cause of death.

Doubtless a goodly proportion of these women were the victims of "cheap rate" physicians and midwives; sometimes made necessary by present conditions by poverty, and sometimes secured through a false sense of economy.

Statesmen for all time have looked upon the birth of a full quota of infants as a right of the state. Roosevelt, you will recall, secured great publicity by his advocacy of large families. If the birth rate of a nation is of concern to its statesmen, certainly preserving the lives of the mothers who bear infants from incidental preventable disease is no less one for statesmen's concern.

New Drug Law to Take Effect

The new Federal Antinarcotic law, commonly called the Harrison Bill has become a law, which will be in effect on and after March 1 of this year, which restricts the sale of opium or any compound manufactured salt, or derivative thereof. Druggists, physicians, dentists and veterinarians are affected by the new law. On and after March 1, they cannot sell, dispense, distribute or give away opium, cocaine leaves or any derivative, except upon an order or an official blank furnished by the deputy internal revenue collector or upon the prescription of a physician who has registered under the act and the prescription must conform to the law and regulations, which are very strict.

Every sale of these drugs has to be recorded and the prescription filed and kept for at least a period of two years, subject to the inspection of the deputy revenue collector. Failure to comply with any of the requirements of the act, upon conviction, is punishable with a fine not exceeding $500 or imprisonment of not more than five years, or both. So it behoves those affected by this law to set up and take notice.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

The Department of Labor, thru the Division of Information of the Bureau of Immigration, has recently established Distribution Branches throughout the country for the purpose on the one hand of developing the welfare of the wage earners of the United States and improving their opportunities for profitable employment, and on the other hand of affording to employers a method whereby they may make application for such help as they need, either male or female, citizens or alien residents, and have their wants supplied thru said Distribution Branches. No fee is charged employer or employee for this service.

The Post Office Department and the Department of Agriculture are cooperating with the Department of Labor in this work. The plan provides in every post office in the United States the blanks of the Division of Information, so that persons seeking employment and employers in need of help may apply at their local post offices for the appropriate blanks on which to make application.

Realizing that the distribution of these blanks in this way will in all probability result in the filing of many applications for employment, it has been deemed advisable to communicate directly with industrial establishments, farmers, and other employers of labor for the purpose of securing profitable employment for applicants.

There is accordingly sent you here with a form of application which, in the event of your needing help, may be filled out and returned in the accompanying envelope without postage. Careful attention will be given to the selection of applicants with a view to directing to employers only those who are in the best position to meet your needs.

FOR WEST POINT CADET

Civil Service Examination To Be Held In Stevens Point.

At the request of Congressman E. E. Brown, the state civil service commission has arranged to hold a competitive examination for the selection of a candidate for appointment as cadet to the West Point military academy from the Eighth congressional district of Wisconsin.

This examination will be held on April 17, 1915, at eight o'clock a.m.

At the court houses in the cities of Shawano, Stevens Point and Wausau. The pay of a cadet at the military academy is $600 per year and one ration per day, a total of $709.50, and no cadet is permitted to receive money or other supplies from his parents or any other person without the permission of the superintendent of the academy. The pay of a cadet is sufficient for his support, which includes his uniforms, laundry bills and other necessary expenses, and to allow any of them to receive money from home would make a distinction between cadets—between the rich and the poor—which it is the especial desire of the academy to avoid. As a matter of fact the military academy is believed to be the most democratic school in the United States. All are furnished with the same outfit; the rich man's boy gets no more than the poor man's boy and upon graduation a cadet who has exercised proper economy will have sufficient money left in his credit to purchase his uniform and equipment as an officer. The course at the academy occupies four years, but cadets are given a leave of absence of about three months at the end of the first two years.
